Norris Plan For Shoals Is Approved By Committee

NITRATE PLANTS TO BE OPERATED BY GOVERNMENT

Amendment Is Made To Resolution Of Nebraskan

GRAVES AGAIN HEARD TODAY

Power Distribution Is Provided For By Solon's Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP)

The Norris resolution, providing for completion of the power units in dam number two at Muscle Shoals and operation of the nitrate plants by the secretary of agriculture for the production of fertilizer was reported favorably today by the senate agriculture committee with amendments.

Amendments to the Norris resolution provided that the secretary of agriculture shall operate the nitrate plants for ten years, instead of five years as originally provided to determine the feasibility of the production of fertilizer at Muscle Shoals.

Before the committee took this action, it heard Governor Graves, head of the Alabama Muscle Shoals delegation, present the state's claim to title to the bed of the Tennessee river, where it traverses Alabama. The governor made the same argument that he presented yesterday to the house military committee, but the rest of the delegation was cut short by Chairman McNary, who held their argument was not relevant at this time.

The house military committee heard Secretary Jardine of the agriculture department, discuss Muscle Shoals in executive session today and on Monday will hear Secretary Davis, of the war department.

Another amendment provided that it shall be the policy of the government to distribute current equitably among states within transmission distance of Muscle Shoals. Still another amendment provided that the secretary of war should not install additional power units in the steam plant until he had determined that the foundation was sufficiently strong to sustain the additional weight.

M. G. Cottrell, head of the Nitrogen laboratory in Washington, also appeared and testified that the cyanamid process for the fixation of nitrogen was obsolete and that the synthetic process was now being used in Europe.

ATTEMPT TO VOTE TO OVERRIDE VETO FAILS IN SENATE

McNary Motion Held Out Of Order By Vice-President

ASWELL BILL BLOCKED ALSO

Backers Of Measure Are Prepared To 'Fight It Out'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP)

An attempt to vote on repassage of the McNary-Haugen farm bill over President Coolidge's veto was held up today in the senate when a motion to consider the bill became entangled in the Boulder canyon-prohibition jam.

The motion was made by Senator McNary but Vice-President Dawes held it was out of order. The Senator said he would try again later.

Concrete evidence that the backers of the McNary-Haugen bill will fight it out for that measure was furnished in the house when Chairman Haugen, of the agriculture committee, joined with Representative Adkins, republican, Illinois, in blocking a move to bring up the Aswell farm relief bill.

When Representative Aswell, democrat, Louisiana, accused the objectors of indifference to farm relief, Haugen replied that "we want legislation that will relieve but not a subterfuge."

The senate vote in an attempt to override the president's veto of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, went over today until Monday.

Chairman McNary of the senate agriculture committee explained that, because of the pressure of other matters in the senate, he had agreed to defer action until next week. Under the original plan, a vote would have been called for today.

Make Reservation Before March 1 And Be Sure of Going To France With Your Own State Delegation

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 26.—American Legionnaires who go to Paris for the ninth national convention in September must make reservation by March 1 to insure a place with their state delegation, Bowman Elder, National Chairman of the France Convention Committee, announced today. On March 1 unfilled state quotas in the movement, which is limited to 30,000 persons, will be recalled from the states and re-assigned from National Headquarters, Elder announced.

Some state departments have already filled their quota of places which were assigned on a membership in the Legion basis and are asking for additional reservation, Elder said. An effort will be made up until the closing date of reservations to accommodate Legionnaires who wish to go with their state delegations, but assurance that the veterans may do so cannot be given unless reservations are made before March 1.

A Department France Convention Officer represents the France Convention Committee in each state and all reservations for the territory must pass through his hands. Veterans may obtain a two-color "On to Paris" steamship ticket containing full information as to official rates, plans and instructions for making a reservation from the Department France Convention Officer or by writing directly to the France Convention Committee, National Headquarters, The American Legion, Indianapolis, Indiana.

PORTABLE CAMPS WILL BE PLACED IN USE BY STATE

Convicts Will Be Put To Work On Roads By June 1

SPECIFICATIONS ARE ANNOUNCED

Camps Each To Have Capacity Of 100 Prisoners

MONTGOMERY, Feb. 26.—(AP)

Six convict camps of 100 men capacity each will be ready during early June, Charles A. Moffett, chairman of the state board of administration has announced.

This large number of movable camps will be required, he said, due to the fact that the 44 counties which have prisoners at the Wega mines of the Alabama By-Products company have a total of about 900 convicts and each county turning the mine-employed convicts over to the state must give up all other convicts at the same time.

The order to remove all convicts from the Wega mines by June 1, 1927, is expected to throw almost two-thirds of these convicts on the state, he pointed out.

The camps, specifications for which are not yet completed, will be uniform in design and made in such manner as to be easily portable.

A hospital unit, laundry, guard-house, dining room and two sleeping rooms will be included in each camp, which will be surrounded by a nine-foot fence, measuring a space 100 feet square, with a six foot fence, twenty feet inside the outer barrier.

Bids on the camp buildings and other equipment needed to maintain convicts on the roads may be let within 15 days, Mr. Moffett said.

CHILD IS INJURED ON WAY TO BURIAL OF MOTHER'S BODY

Tragic Event Occurs West Of City Of Falkville

BOY IS TAKEN BACK TO HOME

Internal Injuries Are Feared By His Physician

While on the way to Cave Springs, where the body of his mother was to have been laid in its last resting place, the six-year-old son of G. Welch, Morgan county farmer, was struck by an automobile and may be seriously injured.

The child, riding in a forward vehicle in the cortege which wound its way west of Falkville, Thursday, jumped off the vehicle when the procession halted momentarily to await the remainder of the cortege, which had fallen behind.

The little boy was struck by a car which was coming up, sustaining injuries about the head and legs. Dr. W. L. Stringer, Falkville physician, told the Daily today that he did not know the extent of the internal injuries of the child, but feared complications. The boy was removed to his home, eight miles east of Hartselle.

Dr. Stringer had not learned the identity of the occupants of the car which struck the little boy.

The accident occurred Thursday near the noon hour as the cortege moved toward Cave Springs where the remains of Mrs. C. Welch were to be laid to rest.

A Thousand Men May Be Facing Death In Storm

More Than Half of a Fleet of 270 Boats May Be Destroyed

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Indications that the storm menacing boats on the Gulf of Alaska will increase in violence were given today in reports to the United States weather bureau here.

As a result of the storm the entire halibut industry of the Pacific coast, representing an investment of $3,000,000 is at a standstill.

With the lives of nearly a thousand men at stake the fleet today battled doggedly against destruction as the gale and snow storm threatened to wipe out everything in its path.

Reports reaching here indicated that 150 of the 270 storm-stricken boats might never reach port.

The fleet which is several hundred miles off shore, ran into the fury of the gale yesterday.

Manned mostly by sturdy Scandinavian seamen, the halibut boats are well accustomed to the gales which often lash the Alaskan coast, but seldom have they seen a storm such as tossed them helplessly about the sea today.

WORK WILL START ABOUT APRIL 1 ON NEW PLANT UNIT

News Authorized By H. Reugg, Jr., Of The Company

CITY GRATIFIED OVER THE PLAN

Biggest Silk Company To Make Further Investment

Announcement was made here today of the plans of Schwarzenbach and Huber, world's largest silk manufacturers, for construction of an addition to their local plant, more than doubling the capacity of the local unit.

The announcement was made following the return of Messrs. T. A. Bowles and John W. Knight after their return from New York and was authorized by H. Reugg, Jr., of the Schwarzenbach and Huber Company. This company operates plants in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Connecticut in America and plants in Italy, Germany, France, and Switzerland in addition to the plant here, which is the only plant in Alabama of its kind and for a long time was the only silk mill in the South.

Under the management of Ernest Wright, the operation of the local plant has been a pronounced success and it is believed that the decision to augment the local operations was based, in a large sense, on the success Mr. Wright has made of the Decatur unit.

The company proposes to erect a building 66 by 200 feet, about 50 feet north of their present plant. The building will be of brick and steel, containing the latest features of mill construction. The new unit will contain about 200 machines and will furnish employment to about 60 more persons than now are employed at the original plant, the new mill being one-third larger than the present one.

The announcement authorized by Mr. Reugg was to the effect that unless unforeseen circumstances arose, work would be started about April 1 and construction will be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

The news that the Schwarzenbach and Huber Company will make additional investments here will be received with deepest gratification by citizens of Decatur. The company and its representative here, Mr. Wright, has won many friends here during its period of operation and the decision to erect an additional unit here was taken as a distinct compliment to this community.

BUSINESS BOOM CUTS TAXES IN BRITISH BUDGET

Increase Fear Now
Fading With Source

INCOME TAXES REMAIN SAME

Chancellor Finds A
Way To Avoid Any Increase

By F. A. WARY
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

LONDON.—British business is rejoicing because, after all, there is not likely to be any fresh taxation in the forthcoming budget.

After the prolonged coal strike, and the expenses of military preparations for China, it seemed for a time that an increase in income tax of from one to two shillings in the pound sterling—the present tax is four shillings in the pound—was inevitable. Now it seems that Chancellor of the Exchequer Winston Churchill will be able just to scrape through without putting additional burdens on the too-heavily-laden taxpayers.

The reason of this is that, after the strike, business everywhere rebounded in the most amazing fashion, with many characteristics of a real 'boom' period. The result was that revenue came leaping into the Treasury in such a spate that it is now believed that the deficit for the year will not be more than $60,000,000.

Urges Government Loan
In addition to this, all the big business interests of the country, headed by the Federation of British Industries—which always has the ear of the Treasury—have urged the Government with all the force in their power not to increase taxation at the present time. In its place they advocate a Government loan to meet any deficit spread over a period of ten, fifteen or twenty years. Their point is that all signs today point to an enormous industrial revival in Britain and that further taxation might strangle it at birth.

Their arguments have undoubtedly impressed both the Government and Churchill, and providing revenue continues to flow in at its present rate until March 31st, it is very probable that fresh taxation, of any vital nature, will come into operation.

Foreign Investments
Another point which has had considerable effect upon the financial admission by the Board of Trade that its calculations for the past three years for invisible items—financial services, investments, shipping income, etc.—have been far under the real yield, and are likely to rise very much within the next few years. British investments abroad have increased enormously since 1920 and the higher rate of interest they are earning, the growth of insurance, banking and investment trust income, have enhanced national income tremendously, although these "invisible items" do not appear on the national balance sheet.

If matters turn out as optimists believe, the only new feature in the budget this year is likely to be a luxury tax on furs and expensive wines and the modification of the automobile and betting taxes.

WIGGINS SERVICE STATION

-.GOLDEN ROADS.-

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

Gay Moore and Christine Noe, her cousin, are employed in the Wall Street house of Johnstone Baird, Gay as a typist and Christine as telephone operator. Christine is in love with Roger Pennington, called Penny by his intimates, and Gay is in love with Stanley Baird, Penny's chum and son of Johnstone Baird. Gay, knowing of the friendship existing between Johnstone Baird and a woman known as the "Lilac Lady" fears that Stanley will inherit his father's vices and grows doubtful of his love for her. She incurs the enmity of Johnstone Baird through inadvertently opening the door of a private dining room in a roadhouse of doubtful reputation where she has gone to seek her cousin Christine. Christine to arouse Penny's jealousy has gone there with Ivor Barclay. Stanley leaves his home and goes to work as an automobile mechanic. His family disowns him, but he and Gay get married and start housekeeping in a tiny apartment. Meanwhile Christine fails to understand the ambition that is driving Penny to make good in his position and jealously lays the blame on Peggy Baird, Stan's sister. Meanwhile, Gay and Stan are blissfully happy in their apartment, albeit Christine tells Gay that she is a fool for living so when she might have every luxury. Gay and Stan have been married a month when Stan receives an invitation to a coming out party given for his cousin. No mention is made of Gay. Stan refuses to accept, but Gay insists. Stan goes to the party, and gets home very late. Gay jealously imagines him with Mini Brooks, Peggy Baird's chum. Stanley tells Gay that the Johnstone Baird employees are giving their annual ball and insists they must both go. Penny tells Christine he must accompany Peggy Baird. In a huff Christine invites Ivor Barclay to escort her to the function. Arrived at the ball, Gay is having a wonderful time, when Mini Brooks and Peggy Baird arrive. Stan goes at once to Mini, leaving Gay alone. Peggy snubs Gay and Penny seeing it, comes to her rescue and insists that she dance. He leaves her in a little alcove.

After the ball, Gay is torn by doubts and misgivings. She goes to her home and talks it over with Jamie, her father. He tells her marriage is for better or worse and convinces her of the error of her thoughts. She returns to Stan, and tells herself that everything is all right—that she will never question again.

Christine, jealously infuriated by Peggy Baird's calls for Penny, insists he is not in the office. Peggy comes to the office and finds that it is untrue and Christine is discharged. Leaving the office, she meets Penny in the corridor. He gives her the key to his apartment, and tells her to go there and he will come up early and they can talk.

CHAPTER 33
Gay had made up her mind that she never would doubt Stanley again.

Big boy that he was, so new to responsibility, so resolved to make good. She'd devote herself to helping him. Be sweet—oh, a hundred times sweeter than she'd ever been. That wasn't too much to do for Stan, loving him as she did. She would make him feel her confidence; understand that it always was with him. What if Mini Brooks did flirt—raise her face close to his, smile with the air of sharing a secret? Shucks—what of it!

She'd do more for him than she had done so far. Try to go out more keep abreast of things. She'd felt a tiny bit stale the night of the ball. The newest dance step—the latest catch words, new to her they were. Strange how quickly one got out of date.

She'd be careful of appearance. What was it Christy said? "Don't let yourself go." No—she'd never slump like Dot Trainer. Spring was here now; she'd need new clothes.

Gay put on the new dress. "Well, I am pretty," she said smiling.

She bought a dress pattern and some soft blue crepe. Ultramarine, the color Stan loved. A great venture—making a new frock. Pining the pattern, setting the seams together just so, fitting it before the mirror—too high the mirror was. She had to climb on a chair to see the hem.

A slim little dress it was, with puffy sleeves and a frill on the skirt. She knew a bit about sewing, but only plain things. And this must be exactly right, all made by hand.

She worked afternoons, picked up every scrap before Stan came. It was to be a surprise for him; she'd put it on some evening—meet him at the door—wait for his astonished joy.

Finally she decided the evening she wore the dress would be a celebration. She'd make all the things he liked for dinner and have the dollops and light the candles. It would be something to remember, something poignant.

Now the dress was ready and the dinner was waiting to be served. The table was lovely with violets from Moorewoods and great-grandmother's silver candlestand, all polished and gleaming.

Now she put on the new dress, standing before the mirror, wide-eyed. "Gee—do I really look like that? Eyes so blue—well, am pretty." She ran the comb through her hair; it fluffed out, an aureole of pale gold.

Now she was sitting down to wait, smiling. Was he going to be late—tonight of all time?

The telephone jingled; she took it up with a catch at her heart, heard his voice:

"Listen, Gay; care if I don't come for dinner tonight? Mr. Brooks is here—wants me to go up home with him. Something big in the wind—may be a great thing for us. Organizing a new company—tell you later. Back early—right?"

Cold swept her, numbed her lips so she couldn't speak. She felt as if a door had slammed in her face shutting her into a bleak aloneness.

"Can't hear you, Gay. Hello—" "It's—Mimi. Brooks there, Stan?"

"Huh? Why—guess she's out in the car. Look here, Gay, didn't you understand? A new company—he wants me to go in—"

"Very well, Stan. Very well." In a faint little voice.

But listen—"

She hung up the receiver, sat there, staring at nothing. After a time she went into the bedroom and took off the new dress, hung it at the back of the closet. Then she cleared the table, put away the candle-stick, folded up the dollops.

When it was dark she lighted the lamp and tried to read, forgetting to turn the pages. She had to remind herself a great many times that she wouldn't doubt Stan—she wouldn't be jealous and petty. Oh, she'd be ready to smile when he came in—listen to him with an open mind, happily. But now—well, so lonely—

"That's all—just sort of lonely," she sighed. And looked at the clock. At midnight, he hadn't come.

Then she was sure something had happened to him. There'd been an accident—he was lying in a hospital somewhere, dying maybe, calling for her—

Frantically she flew to the telephone, called the Brooks home. A precise English voice said: "The young folks are dancing, Madam—Shall I call Mr. Baird?"

"No. Thank you, no—" The young folks. They were having a party. Stanley was dancing—with Mimi Brooks! He'd forgotten her, alone here, so soon—so soon! And high hope. Now it was all spoiled; everything spoiled—

She became a little hysterical then with disappointment and fear. "I can't stand it!" she kept moaning. "If he wants them instead of me I'll go away. If I'm not enough for him any more I'd better go."

Hardly knowing what she did she got out a bag, put some things into it, made herself ready to leave. But, as she was locking the door the key caught; the small problem of turning it set her thoughts working more smoothly.

"I've no right to do this," she told herself. "This is what Jamie said—'for worse.' I'm acting as if I didn't love him at all. At least I can wait till morning; not sneak out in the night!"

She was hardly more than in bed before Stan came, bustling in as if elated.

But once again she pretended to be asleep, face toward the wall. (To Be Continued)

March 3 is almost here, let us have a court-house.

Nowadays a college student is in the minority, regardless of the increasing numbers attending school.

It didn't require a long trip over the Courtland pike to convince Judge Finnell that something must be done with that road.

An attempt to recover for local purposes a single dollar sent northward, to a mail order house gives the attempter a pretty good argument for trading at home.

The announcement that Schwarzenbach and Huber will make additional investments here in erection of a large addition to their present silk mill, comes as a most gratifying announcement to the people of Decatur.

The labor here of Ernest Wright, superintendent of the local plant, is bearing fruit, and the announcement of the addition is an occasion for congratulations to him. Mr. Wright has made a pronounced success of the local mill and his record here, no doubt, had much to do with the decision of the company to enlarge its operations.

The Daily also desires to extend the appreciation of the community to Messrs. T. A. Bowles and John W. Knight, who have successfully concluded the negotiations with the company.

GOVERNOR GRAVES CONTINUES TO CONFOUND POLITICAL OPPONENTS.

The Daily did not support the candidacy of Governor Bibb Graves, when he waged his campaign in the democratic primary and The Daily does not intend to be construed as pledging support to him in any future election, yet, truth demands that the press of Alabama, even the newspapers which opposed him, accord to him the praise which is due for the splendid start he has made in office.

Governor Graves' majority, in all frankness, was a surprise to many a political observer who believed that he would not be surprised, but many felt that they too were a little shocked that his victory was so complete.

Governor Graves went into office with a number of perplexing questions to be faced and solved. The recent campaign was noted for promises on behalf of the candidates. Schools, roads and convict leasing were major considerations of the campaign and candidates were quizzed from one end of the state to the other on their attitude toward these questions.

Mr. Graves, along with the other candidates, made known his position. He favored a longer school term for the rural schools and promised financial relief for them; he favored a $25,000,000 bond issue for roads and promised to submit such an issue to a vote; he favored taking the convicts from the mines and promised, if elected, to accomplish that task.

The chief executive has been in office not quite two months. From past experience with successful candidates, the voters would not have expected Governor Graves to have accomplished a great deal during that time, yet, examining the record, what do we find?

1. We find that the legislature has been persuaded to appropriate $600,000 for lengthening the terms of rural schools in this state. The appropriation's validity was questioned by the state's attorney general, but the merits were taken up by the Alabama supreme court and the appropriation declared legal. Governor Graves' determination to help the schools, obviously, played a very important part in these negotiations.

2. We find that the election already has been called, in which the voters will be given an opportunity to ratify the proposed bond issue of $25,000,000. The state highway department has been reorganized, as promised by the candidate, and the new director already is familiarizing himself with road problems throughout the state.

3. We find that convicts already are coming out of the mines. As rapidly as other places can be found for them in state institutions, the convicts are being transferred and all of this without serious interruption of the work in any of the penal institutions.

The Daily feels that the record made by Governor Graves deserves some measure of praise, even from those who opposed in election in the August primaries, and The Daily is good enough to accord him this praise.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO TODAY, THE DAILY APPEARED HERE.

Sometime about six o'clock in the afternoon, just fifteen years ago today, there was a deep rumble in the basement of a Second avenue building and, after the usual first-day difficulties, a press, then gigantic for this section, began the first issue of The Decatur Daily, which now has dropped the "s" and is The Decatur Daily, an eventuality the founders had in mind when the name was selected.

Today is The Daily's birthday anniversary and the management of this newspaper approaches the event, paradoxical as it may seem, with a spirit of both pride and humility. Pride because of the part The Daily has been enabled to play in the development of this great section and humility because of the realization of the part its friends have played in permitting it to continue to serve.

In its first 15 years of existence, The Daily has not failed to make its share of mistakes, but it is a never ending source of gratification that, during these years, its friends have remained loyal and have helped to make a rough road easier and hard problems more easily solved.

It has been a source of joy for The Daily to chronicle, during these 15 years, the gradual but substantial growth of this community. It has been a source of sorrow to The Daily as it recorded the severance of tried and true links in the community chain.

The newspaper is but the mirror of life's complexities and the good and the bad has been published but, looking backward over that 15-year mite from Time's eternity, The Daily recalls many things which it has not done, it would have like to have accomplished; and many things done, which it wishes could be undone.

However, deserving whatever credit may accrue to an individual or institution which earnestly strives toward an ideal, not-withstanding how many times the plodder may falter, The Daily, on this fifteenth birthday anniversary rededicates itself to the ideals which were implanted by its founders in that initial issue, February 26, 1912.

Founded on a broad basis of community service, from the first issue of The Daily to this one, this newspaper has striven to aid the community in its development. As a natural consequence, on many public issues, The Daily found itself not in accord with all of its readers nor all of its friends. The Daily, however, has striven constantly to do what was best for this city, as The Daily saw the situation and it hastens to cloak those who opposed its policies from time to time with the same degree of civic conscientiousness.

As a semi-public servant, The Daily has tried at all times to present the activities of this community in the best possible light and will continue to do so. Despite the ridicule which some of the latter-day commentators attempt to heap upon the "booster" and his ilk, The Daily begs to plead guilty to the characterization. The Daily has been a booster from its inception.

A casual perusal of the first few issues of The Daily will convince any observer that this newspaper was founded in a spirit of "boosting." In order that the community might have a medium for proper community expression, a number of local business men joined in organization of the stock company which founded this newspaper.

From the first day to this, The Daily has endeavored, through lean years and fat ones, to maintain a spirit of cheerful boosting, if not boasting, of the merits, and they are numerous, of this great North Alabama area. During this period, The Daily has been inspired by a firm belief that the day would dawn when the advantages of the Tennessee Valley would be recognized wherever men gather to pursue commercial enterprises.

Naturally, with such a background, The Daily today is singularly gratified that it has lived to see so many of its dreams come true. Industries, better roads, a bridge across the Tennessee, consolidation, these and numerous other lesser dreams have become realities since February 26, fifteen years ago. The only touch of sadness in an otherwise joyful picture, as The Daily sees the present panorama of opportunity, is the fact that W. R. Shelton, founder of The Daily and who was the guiding spirit in all its early struggles, is not here to watch with us the ever widening vista of development of the community which he loved so intensely and for the good of which he strove so earnestly, so valiantly and with such good purpose.

The first issues of The Daily found this newspaper in the forefront of various public movements, including an effort to get a bridge across the Tennessee river, the consolidation of Decatur and New Decatur, diversification of farm products and betterment of schools and churches. Fifteen years later, Time finds The Daily in the midst of efforts for establishment of a curb market, canning factories, and various other public projects which have for their primary aim the public good. Time has changed the name, the mechanical features and enlarged the size of The Daily, but now, as then, The Daily is expending whatever energy it may have at its command in a sincere effort to bring about improvement in conditions here.

The Daily would be ungrateful if it did not, from time to time, express its appreciation for the many kindnesses which are extended to it by the local citizenship. These acts of loyal co-operation could never be enumerated, one by one, but The Daily realizes that without this spirit of help on the part of the public, whatever success, in a material way, The Daily has enjoyed could not have been possible.

As it begins its sixteenth year, The Daily urges that the people of Decatur continue the diligent work which has marked the past year toward building here the great city which should be on the banks of the Tennessee river. To its utmost endeavor to aid in the consummation of that ideal, The Daily pledges itself.

Congratulations to the Albany Drug Company employees, the first to purchase baseball tickets. A little more co-operation of that kind and the baseball committee will have no trouble getting the necessary financial backing.

Within less than one week, M. J. Kelley, manager of the Minneapolis Millers, "Decatur's Own," will be here for the Millers' spring training. Baseball fans of this section will be given a rare treat this year, in the scheduling of nine contests here between major league and the best minor league aggregations.

Leave Decatur to the north and the river, then the river bottom road is encountered; try the south and Echols Hill's highway difficulties must be overcome; go to the west toward Moulton and try to get over the pike under construction there; turn westward on the Courtland road and almost impassability is found; attempt the Danville pike and conditions are bad. Is there any wonder that Decatur complains rather vociferously at times? The fact that such a highway condition has been permitted to exist here reflects no great credit upon the local citizenship, but fortunately they are aroused now and Decatur expects to have good highway entrances to this city or ascertain why.

Treatment of Babies with Common Ailment

Excessive Richness of Milk Induces Distressing Results.
By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DIARRHEA in an infant is likely to be caused by excessive richness of the milk. This is easily prevented in a bottle fed baby because the cream content of the milk can be reduced. It is more difficult in a breast fed infant because the quality of the mother's milk cannot be controlled. When the milk is too rich there may be vomiting. The expelled matter shows cheesy lumps. In the stools will be seen hard lumps of yellow curds. Colic and all the other symptoms of indigestion are present. Of course there are other causes for diarrhea than an overfeeding of cream. Improper food, particularly contaminated food, is an all too common cause. I have told you time and time again that the preparation of the baby's food is one of the most particular jobs in the world. Unless it is done exactly right it is done entirely wrong. There is no middle course. The purpose of the feeding is to give a mixture correct in proportions and free from contamination. If the preparation of the milk is slighted in the least degree, the child is in serious danger of bad effects. When there is diarrhea there may be as many as twenty or thirty passages in the twenty-four hours. Of course this is very weakening to the infant. As a result the child falls away rapidly. The change in the appearance of the baby is astonishing. It becomes wrinkled, shriveled and old looking. The skin feels dry and cold. If the trouble persists it indicates inflammation in the intestine. In such a case there will be mucus and streaks of blood in the stool. Even though the infant looks well there may be too many movements. These are marked by clots of milk. Such cases are associated with over-feeding and are readily overcome by a reduction in the quantity of food. Exposure to cold or too thin clothing may have diarrhea as a warning that the child is neglected. The body must be kept warm. In diarrhea the first thing to do is to stop feeding. This seems terrible to the new mother. She is afraid her baby may starve. She need not worry—a day's loss of food isn't serious. In any event a little barley water will be enough. If there is a tendency to diarrhea, the top milk or cream should be reduced. Having cut down the amount of fat, a little gelatin of the right sort added to the feedings will be most helpful. Dear mother, do not give paregoric or laudanum. Under no circumstances give opium in any form unless your doctor positively directs you to. It is too dangerous a drug to trifling with and nobody, young or old, should take it except under the advice of a physician and then only for the one time he prescribes it. In the beginning of a diarrhea the bowels should be emptied by some form of castor oil. This is to get rid of the irritating and fermenting materials found there. But about this your doctor will advise you.

THE VIEWS OF OTHERS

SPRING CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGNS NECESSARY FOR PUBLIC HEALTH

In anticipation of spring's arrival within a few weeks, plans might be made by the householders of the city to take part in the annual Spring clean-up campaign the city puts on. Already the city is making its plans for the clean-up work, providing more trash cans for streets, working street gangs where needed to gather up the accumulation of leaves in streets and alleys, and generally paving the way for a thorough overhauling.

Clean-up campaigns are vital to the health of the people of all cities. Made in the early spring, the clean-up campaigns result in better sanitary conditions before the approach of warm weather. If all the people do their part in the clean-up effort, a healthier people results. Everyone should get ready to do their part this year.—Anniston Star.

CREDITABLE

We hasten to compliment the Educational Association of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, for its sane and sensible proclamation in regard to legislative interference with instruction.

The resolution puts them on record as "opposed to all legislation that would interfere with a proper teaching of science in American schools and colleges." It expresses the belief that such legislation "will be futile and can serve no good purpose." The same day legislatures in two state, Arkansas, and New Hampshire, killed bills which would have sought to prevent any teaching of the theory of evolution in public institutions of learning. The lawmakers are, likewise, to be congratulated. Censorship of learning based upon a dogmatic tradition, is hostile to the future of the human race.—Troy Messenger.

We count that day lost when the Huntsville Times fails to demand the removal of the Madison county jail from Metropolitan avenue or the Decatur Daily has no mention of repairing Echols hill. We trust our two contemporaries will live long enough to see these civic improvements made in their respective times.—Limestone Democrat.

JUNIORS TO MEET

The board of directors of the Junior Chamber of Commerce will meet Monday evening in regular session at seven o'clock in The Daily office.

Today:

By ARTHUR BRISBANE. (Copyright, 1926, by The Star Co., For The Decatur Daily).

In offering Mr. Brisbane's daily editorials The Daily does not necessarily concur with his opinions, but offers them as the sentiments of the highest paid editorial writer in this country.

THIS Union Pacific "Gold Coast Limited," having climbed up 6,000 feet yesterday afternoon and evening, now is crossing from Wyoming into Utah, rolling over snow covered hills 7,000 feet high.

This is real American country, Colorado, Montana, Idaho, the Dakotas, Oregon, Washington, Nevada are your neighbors in this part of the world.

It looks what it is, a great and powerful country. Straight walls of stone, capped with pine trees tower hundreds of feet above you. Telephone and telegraph wires cross in all directions. Good automobile roads run beside the track. Below in the mountain valleys long strings of cattle in single file move before the wind, picking here and there in the snow, patiently building up beef that will feed the east.

WORTHY of the trip is the gigantic engine, the most powerful high speed locomotive in the world, needed to pull this long train of heavy Pullman cars up past Sherman, 8,013 feet above the sea.

THIS engine called "Type 7,000" is more than ninety feet long, it can make one hundred miles an hour and weighs 582,000 pounds. Automatic stokers take the place of sweating firemen. Of course an invisible mysterious electric current, weighing nothing at all, will some day do the work of this big locomotive, which will take its place among the curiosities of the past.

BONFIL'S Denver Post brings pleasing information from Washington. The state department it appears has told Americans owning oil lands in Mexico not to submit to confiscatory Mexican legislation without further investigation.

Uncle Sam is determined to protect his citizens legitimate investments in other countries, and that news will please Americans.

THIS country owes a firm attitude in the matter to foreign nations as well as to its own citizens. Under the Monroe doctrine, we notify Europe to keep her hands off these two American continents. Left to herself, Great Britain would promptly send the necessary equipment to protect British rights in Mexico.

Daily News Letter

Gossip of Staff Correspondents at World Centers of Population

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—(INS)—For the first time in fifty years Yale Daily News has decided to operate on a basis of "news only" and will try a year in which it has no axe to grind. Such is the startling—to Yale men—policy of the new News board of editors appointed just as the Oldest College Daily rounded out its first half-century of existence.

Yale Daily News has been campaigning ever since its first issue in 1877. Its greatest victory was abolishing compulsory chapel, graduates say, though the News also claims having secured for students somewhat of a say as to how they were to be governed.

Yale under graduates now suggest that the Prom be held on a Friday night instead of a Tuesday as of old, arguing that fraternity houses would have a chance to entertain during the week-end and at the same time the students who desired would get an opportunity to rest after the strenuous event. The 1927 Prom was to be in the nature of a test. On its success the faculty would judge the problem of whether to end the historic event or let it live. The 1927 Prom was the largest ever in point of attendance but some students wish there had been more girls. All students are awaiting the financial report. The junior class must make up the deficit at once if there is a shragtoe, and it is likely that the same shortage may mean the end of the Prom as a definite Yale institution.

The whole trouble with the drama, nowadays, is the average audience needs to be educated, in the opinion of various "little theatre" men who have been attending a drama conference here. "A part of a University's business is to create audiences" said E. M. Woolley, who has charge of student productions at Yale.

"What is the use of a perfectly written, perfectly acted, perfectly produced play if nobody wants to see it?" he demanded. "Abie's Irish Rose" seems dignified and

If we say Europe must not maintain her own rights by force in this part of the world the least we can do is to insist upon recognition of such rights.

WE CAN justly say to Europe, "You must not take a foot of American territory." But we have no right to say, "you must allow yourselves to be cheated, or your property, honestly acquired, confiscated by retroactive legislation."

THE state department will have public support in its demand that property rights of Americans be respected in Mexico, as property rights of Mexicans are respected in the United States.

As to the statement that some American concessions have been fraudulently obtained in Mexico there is nothing improbable about that, and such concessions should suffer the fate of any other fraud.

WALL STREET speculators show no overwhelming confidence in the interstate commerce commission or its judgment on railroad values. On Monday the supreme court said the interstate commerce commission has power to fix the value of railroads. Thereupon railroad stocks in Wall Street remind you of Sen-nacherib's army. You remember the "Might of the Gentle, unsmote by the sword hath melted like snow, in the glance of the Lord."

Speculators turned foolish, and threw stocks overboard.

This isn't a government to knock values, and keep poor little railroads from making an honest penny.

THE LAW says that prosperous railroads may earn so much, no more, on what they are really worth, the surplus to be "re-captured" by the government and used in helping weak railroads that can't make ends meet. The idea is to do in a way what the big postoffice does, letting profits of the big cities like New York and Chicago make up losses in the little faraway postoffices that cannot support themselves.

SINCE it is admitted that our public men are not competent or honest enough to manage railroads under government ownership, the next best plan would be to have all railroads under one management, the people regulating rates, fairly, insisting on service everywhere, the control ownership using its profits in one place to take care of its losses in another. Economy of concentrated operation, alone, could stop all losses.

Professor Sawyer Falk, of Hillsdale College, Michigan, told the conference that the purpose of a collegiate drama department "is the developing of an 'audience mind' superior to the existing 'audience mind,' and the training of artists of the theatre to administer to this 'audience mind.'"

The general impression was that it is the audience alone that affects the theatre today. And the speakers stressed the idea that students as they enter the various college drama schools must work hard each in his own day to this end. "Art is long and time is fleeting" but a continuous flow of college trained theatre men eventually will change the audiences of the entire land.

When Yale had finished mid-year examinations and was opened for regular business on February 10 a husky group of students settled down to what are known as extra-curricula activities. This particular group was working under guidance of Edward O. Leader, of University of Washington, to the end that Mr. Leader might maintain an unbroken record in his career as coach of Yale's varsity crew.

First-crew men are working in a tank behind the gymnasium here and will transfer to New Haven harbor soon as the ice works out in the broad reaches of Long Island Sound. After some days of seasoning there they will be moved a dozen miles to the Housatonic river at Derby and settle down to a period of rowing that ends June 23 when the Harvard regatta is rowed. It is considered likely here that some of these oarsmen will go to Amsterdam in 1928 to compete in the Olympic regatta when a Yale crew won in 1924 on the Seine when that Yale crew became a United States crew.

ATTRACTION PICTURE OF DECATUR RESIDENT

An attractive picture appearing in the social section of the Palm Beach Post of Mrs. J. T. Jones is of interest to friends here.

The pleasing photograph is followed with the comment, "Mrs. John T.

Jones, prominent in club and social life at Decatur, Ala., her home city, maintains an attractive home on Barcelona road, El Cid, which she occupies each season.

"Mrs. Jones is popular in social circles here. She is the sister of Mrs. R. E. Oliver of Granada road, El Cid."

MOTHERS' CLUB MEETS.

Mrs. Frank Lide and Mrs. H. R. Summer were lovely hostesses of Friday entertaining the Mothers' Club and a few extra guests, Mrs. E. L. Moore, of Greenville, Tenn., who is the house guest of Mrs. Lide; Mrs. Walter Durham, Mrs. Kirby and Miss Harriett Irwin, at the attractive home of Mrs. Summer and on this occasion it was made more beautiful with a profusion of early spring flowers.

A limited amount of business was transacted including final plans for the musical that will be given under the direction of Mrs. H. R. Summer. Mrs. Baugh, the president, appointed a decoration committee composed of Mrs. Jona McGehee and Mrs. B. F. Martin.

A report was read from the Kindergarten committee with other routine reports.

The program for the afternoon was an unusually good one. Miss Harriett Irwin played an instrumental number that was most enjoyable. The reading by Mrs. Kirby was a delight to her hearers as was the vocal number by Mrs. R. M. McGlathery.

The literary program consisted of two papers on "Domestic Science," the first being "The Physical Structure and Function of the Household," given by Mrs. L. V. Timberlake and the other a discourse by Mrs. L. R. Nash on "Importance of Understanding Food Values and the Balanced Ration." These of course will be very beneficial to the housewives that compose the membership of the club.

After adjournment the hostesses invited those present to remain for a social hour. During this time they served dainty refreshments adhering to a color scheme of pink and white, and they consisted of pink and white, ice cream, individual cakes embossed in pink and white, mints and nuts.

BIBLE CLASS.

A Head-Dress Fantasy :- By Fanny Darrell

ONE evening, Marguerite, a lovely lady of the court of Henry of Navarre, wearied of the eternal blandishments of the fawning courtiers and stole quietly away to a secluded balcony of the castle. How bored she was with the perfumed noblemen and their everlasting pretty speeches about her long silken curls of midnight blackness. They were the toast of France—these curls—and how she abhorred them. Just as we dream of the way we should like to look if fairy godmothers with their gracious habits of granting wishes were still in style, so poor little Marguerite of the Seventeenth Century dreamed of a closely cut boyish bob with a wave here and a swirl there, and a very blond and smart tout ensemble.

the following enjoyed her hospitality with the members of the club: Mrs. J. G. Woodruff, Mrs. A. T. Hanson, Mrs. T. M. Jones, Jr., Mrs. J. D. Sharp, Mrs. J. Y. Hamill, Mrs. R. N. Harris and Mrs. John W. Jones.

At the close of the usual number of games Mrs. Polhill passed plates of elaborate refreshments.

The refreshments served late in the evening were unusually delicious.

DANCE FOR MISS MATHENY.

Mrs. A. E. Humphrey beautifully complimented Miss Mary Matheny, formerly of Harriman, Tenn., a recent addition to the younger social set, with a dance on Friday evening at her home on Jackson street. Myriads of jonquils and trails of Jackson vine were used to decorate the home.

A local orchestra composed of Mrs. Warren Gardner, Edwin Shackelford and Saunders Cortner supplemented by Max Sobotka and Jake Stephenson, of Hartselle, furnished splendid music for the sixty-five dancers of the younger set who participated in her hospitality.

Between the dances fruit punch was served.

PARIS.—Straw and nothing else but straw will be the favorite material for summer hats, according to the French modistes, in spite of the fact that felt always predominates until Easter-time at least and every often persists until the first fine racing days.

Each house seems to have chosen a favorite straw. One is using a straw which looks like picot, while another is still using the crocheted with new variations. One new effect is obtained by the use of a milan straw worked in nobs.

"Crochet visca" is used by Gergette. The name is the same but the straw is different with a stitch in it that looks quite like button-holding in a single open square. This repeats in every row of the straw.

"Kita" is a new straw, too, which looks much like hemp.

Grass-green straw stitched with a black thread is used by another modiste for a fairly large summer hat on which big pleats come in the crown towards the top and run down the side to the edge of the brim which is piped in cyclamen georgette to match the rose leaves at the side.

"Choquette" is quite coarse and rough. "Astrakhan" makes a small close-fitting hat with a bandeau in fine shaded felt to tone with the old blue of the new straw. Black milan makes a beret with a conventional or rose-geranium placed at one side.

The very summery straws are of course much larger, sometimes with large wreaths of flowers about the crown or sometimes a gorgeous splash on top of the crown. "Leghorn" in all its feminine loveliness is deftly worked by some of the modistes and is always beautiful with lace or "gandie" frocks.

Members of the board of education, however, refuse to shoulder responsibility. Mrs. Mary Prag, one of the militant members, replied with the statement that "only a crusade among the mothers" will remedy the situation.

"Parents can't pass the responsibility to the schools," Mrs. Prag warned. "Mothers have the children eighteen hours a day; we in school have them only six. And what can you expect of the children when their mothers smear and dab themselves with lipstick and rouge? When I was a girl it was considered disgraceful to wear paint. Only a similar attitude can do away with it now."

Rouge On School Girl Lips Starts Big San Francisco Fight

By THOMAS R. CURRAN
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO.—Use of rouge and lipstick by girl students in the public schools is the nucleus of a bitter controversy here.

Blanche Bates, known to thousands of theatre-goers throughout the country, recently wrote to the San Francisco board of education, protesting that girls in local schools have their lips so daubed with carmine and their cheeks touched up with rouge till they resemble clowns.

And Miss Bates, in private life Mrs. George Creel, from her years of experience on the stage knows her cosmetics.

Believing that this painting of "13 and 14-year old girls" is done without the knowledge of their parents, Mrs. Creel called upon the board of education to take some action in the matter.

A Small Matter

"Some regard this as a small thing," the actress continued, "but I do not agree with them. It is shocking and distressing to see children of thirteen and fourteen apeing those much older and robbing themselves, in looks at least, of the simplicity and sweetness of their years. It is also undoubtedly a waste of time, distraction of attention, and what must be the case, an evasion and deception of the parental authority. It may lead to nothing but to an additional silliness or it may lead to a very definite demoralization of character."

Mrs. Creel said her interest in the matter was inspired by the fact that her own 13-year-old daughter has picked up the "makeup" complex in school.

Placing Responsibility

Members of the board of education, however, refuse to shoulder responsibility. Mrs. Mary Prag, one of the militant members, replied with the statement that "only a crusade among the mothers" will remedy the situation.

"Parents can't pass the responsibility to the schools," Mrs. Prag warned. "Mothers have the children eighteen hours a day; we in school have them only six. And what can you expect of the children when their mothers smear and dab themselves with lipstick and rouge? When I was a girl it was considered disgraceful to wear paint. Only a similar attitude can do away with it now."

Alfred I. Esberg, president of the board of education, asked

What can the teachers do if the girls come to school all made up?"

First Round of Southern Tourney Disastrous For Virginia Entries

Three Virginia fives were eliminated in the first round of the Southern Intercollegiate Basketball tourney opened yesterday in Atlanta. Vanderbilt, Auburn and Georgia managed to push aside Washington and Lee, V. P. I., and V. M. I. during the first round. North Carolina State, Mississippi A. and M. and Tennessee were the other teams to drop by the wayside in the opening round.

The Commodores and Generals battled in the first game, the half ending with Vanderbilt a single point in the front. Josh Cody, Vandy coach, showed a smart bit of finesse in the last half and shot in Jim Stuart to take Vernon Sharpe's place. Stuart immediately swept past the Generals guards and totaled 21 points, to place his team an easy victor 44-32.

North Carolina Tar Heels eliminated Tennessee 32-17 in a hard-fought but comparatively slow game.

South Carolina displayed a brilliant attack to end the Wolf Pack from North Carolina State, 32-26.

The University of Georgia defeated V. M. I. 36-14. Frain, a Georgia guard set a precedent when he scored one of V. M. I.'s two goals in the last half.

Auburn played the closest game of the tournament when they battled the V. P. I. Gobblers for a five-point lead at the final. The Plainsmen came through with a 38-33 win and seem destined to reach the top notches for their first triumph against an exceptionally good team.

Georgia Tech eliminated the Mississippi Aggies 40-24. Hearn, Tech center, came across with 23 of his teams points, only one less than was scored by the entire Aggie team.

Rights to enter the semi-finals will be settled this afternoon when the teams clash in the second round. The semi-finals are scheduled for Monday, while the finals will come up Tuesday.

In reviewing the games played Friday it might be said that the Tar Heels, champions of many years, showed only an occasional dash of the former entries from the Old North State. Carolina was battling the University of Tennessee and while there was not a great deal of difficulty combined with the attack of the Volunteers, still Carolina was pushed to get across with the victory. Van Story was the only Tar Heel to present an attack equal to those of the Carolinians of other years.

Another feature of the Carolina play was the erratic shooting of the former champions. Carolina did not locate the basket on easy under the basket shots. Morris, at guard, played an exceptional brand of ball for his team and generally led the offense.

ANCIENT ABODES WILL BE SAVED

Britisher Heads A Move To Save Old Houses

By International News Service
LONDON.—Premier Baldwin is heading the wide-spread movement for the preservation of old-time English country cottages.

"It is difficult," said the Premier, in a speech to the Royal Society of Arts, "to exaggerate the importance which architecture has played in the national life."

"Medieval craftsmanship which has come down to our time has an appearance of natural growth wholly lacking in the 'abortions of red brick and slate' in the industrial areas."

"While we all recognize the civilizing power of good housing, we have to confess that we and our immediate ancestors have neglected it from this and every viewpoint."

"William Morris once said that it was his duty to stain wall paper with poetry. No one can say we have stained buildings with poetry in the past two or three generations. We have to see if we can again tap the old springs of craftsmanship. We want to preserve old houses, not as curiosities, but to bring them back into the main stream of national life."

Close Contest Taken By Locals After Hard Fight

After waging a hard fight to overcome stubborn resistance, the Decatur high school boys' team last night triumphed over the Morgan County High school five of Hartselle 23 to 18 in a hectic contest.

The Decatur team successfully broke up the Hartselle passing attack and, with a strong fighting spirit, kept the Hartselle basketballers away from victory. The Decatur line-up included: Lanier, West, Hurst, Chunn, Bryant, Brannagh, Napps, Tillery.

PLAINSMEN PLAY CAROLINA CHAMPS

Auburn Draws Tough Assignment This Afternoon

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 26.—(AP)—With six of fourteen teams on their way home after the first day of play in the Southern Conference basketball tournament here, the remaining eight are prepared to fight it out for semi-final positions.

Vanderbilt and the University of Mississippi will open the second day's play this afternoon and the champion North Carolina team will go up against the crack Auburn five immediately afterward.

In night games Maryland will meet the University of Georgia and Georgia Tech will play the University of South Carolina.

Maryland and the University of Mississippi drew byes for the first days, but six other teams took baptisms of fire. Auburn took its place in the bracket with the Tar Heels, only after a nip and tuck game with Virginia Poly. South Carolina eliminated North Carolina State, a favorite and Georgia Tech experienced considerable difficulty with the Mississippi Aggies. Vanderbilt found the Generals a fighting outfit while the Carolina champions had little difficulty with Tennessee. Georgia eliminated V. M. I. in a comedy game.

Men and women are included in the order, and only those persons who are certified will be excused.

Every citizen will be furnished with a card indicating his or her physical development, and the card will be examined every ten days.

The order is issued not only from the point of view of public health, but also to insure that every citizen is capable of taking part in the defense of his country.

Find New Metal Harder Than Steel

By International News Service
LONDON.—A new metal known as solium and composed of oxides, earths, and metals has been perfected by Thomas D. Kelley, a London chemist and civil engineer.

Kelley claims that the new material can be made harder than steel, or as soft as lead; that there is no degree of malleability to which it may not be reduced; and that there is no purpose whatever for which platinum is used which solium will not serve equally as well.

Solium, says Kelley, is absolutely impervious to hydrogen, and does not get red hot in contact with hydrogen as in the case of platinum.

Kelley's discovery of solium has led to the discovery of another new metal called rustless iron, which is as malleable as brass—and also cheaper and stronger.

Solium is much cheaper than platinum, and a company has been formed to exploit it.

CLOTURE FAILS IN THIRTY-TWO JOIN SINGING SCHOOL

Boulder Dam Backers Are Defeated In Skirmish

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The effort to invoke the drastic cloture rule to limit debate on the filibuster ridden Boulder canyon dam bill, failed today in the senate, forecasting failure of the bill, itself, for this session of Congress.

With less than a week remaining before final adjournment and with the Arizona senators prepared to continue indefinitely the filibuster that recently held the senate in its first all-night session since war days, supporters of the bill see little hope that it can be brought to a vote.

A two thirds majority would have been needed to invoke cloture and the roll call showed the bill's supporters 29 votes short of the number needed.

Burns Predicts Alabama Raisers of Sheep May Expect Good Price Hike

AUBURN, Feb. 25. (AP)—With a reduction of 365,000, or 8 per cent, in the number of lambs and sheep on feed for market this year as compared with one year ago shepherds in Alabama may expect satisfactory prices this year, in the opinion of F. W. Burns, State extension livestock specialist of the agricultural college here.

The figures for the two years, Mr. Burns said, are 4,516,000 for 1926 and 4,251,000 for 1927, based upon January 1 of both years.

There was a decrease of 615,000 head in the Western States. Colorado had only about half as many on feed this year as last—750,000 compared to 1,475,000. There were decreases of about 45,000 head in Wyoming and 50,000 in Idaho. All of the other western states had more on feed than last year, the biggest increase being in Montana, with a gain of about 50,000 head.

In the eleven corn belt states an increase of 310,000 head, or 32 per cent took place, all of these states showing a gain except Nebraska and South Dakota. Nebraska showed a loss of about 200,000 head. The decrease was in the Scotch bluff and Central Platte valley feeding areas, there being an increase in the eastern part of the State. The largest increases were shown by Iowa, Michigan and Illinois.

In the Deep Belt section of Alabama as well as in other sections of the South, sheep raising is on the increase, Mr. Burns said. With an advantage in climate, southern farmers are turning to sheep and giving special attention to lambs, in order to catch the very early spring markets when fancy prices are paid, he said.

Tennessee Lady Had So Little Strength She "Couldn't Get Around." Took Cardui With Benefit.

Gassaway, Tenn.—"I wasn't able to do any of my work, and it seemed like I had so little strength I just couldn't get around," says Mrs. Frank Murphy, who lives near here.

"My mother knew of the good Cardui could do, so she told me to take it. I sent and got a bottle, and seemed like all the time I grew stronger."

"I had been suffering with pains in my sides all the time, and Cardui helped this wonderfully. I needed a tonic for female trouble, and Cardui just fitted the need. I was awfully restless and could not sleep at night, but after taking two bottles of Cardui I could sleep like a top. I got along all right, and I know it was due to Cardui. I can certainly recommend it to women suffering from women's troubles."

"My present health is just fine."

Thousands of women have written to tell how Cardui relieved them of pain and suffering, and helped them to improve in health and strength. Cardui is perfectly harmless, being an extract of mild-acting herbs, and contains no dangerous drugs or harmful ingredients.

Old Port Wine To Get Tax Increase

By International News Service LONDON.—Chancellor of the Exchequer, Winston Churchill, is considering the doubling of the tax on port wine, now the most popular drink in Britain. This increase would bring in an additional $15,000,000 yearly.

During 1926, 9,545,861 gallons of port were imported into Britain and the present tax is $1.50 per gallon. Churchill is inclined to bring the import tax up to $3.

Port has become increasingly popular in Britain since the war on account of the price and the bad quality of whiskey.

Believing that the tax is likely to come into effect, wine shippers and merchants are moving all port from bond as quickly as possible.

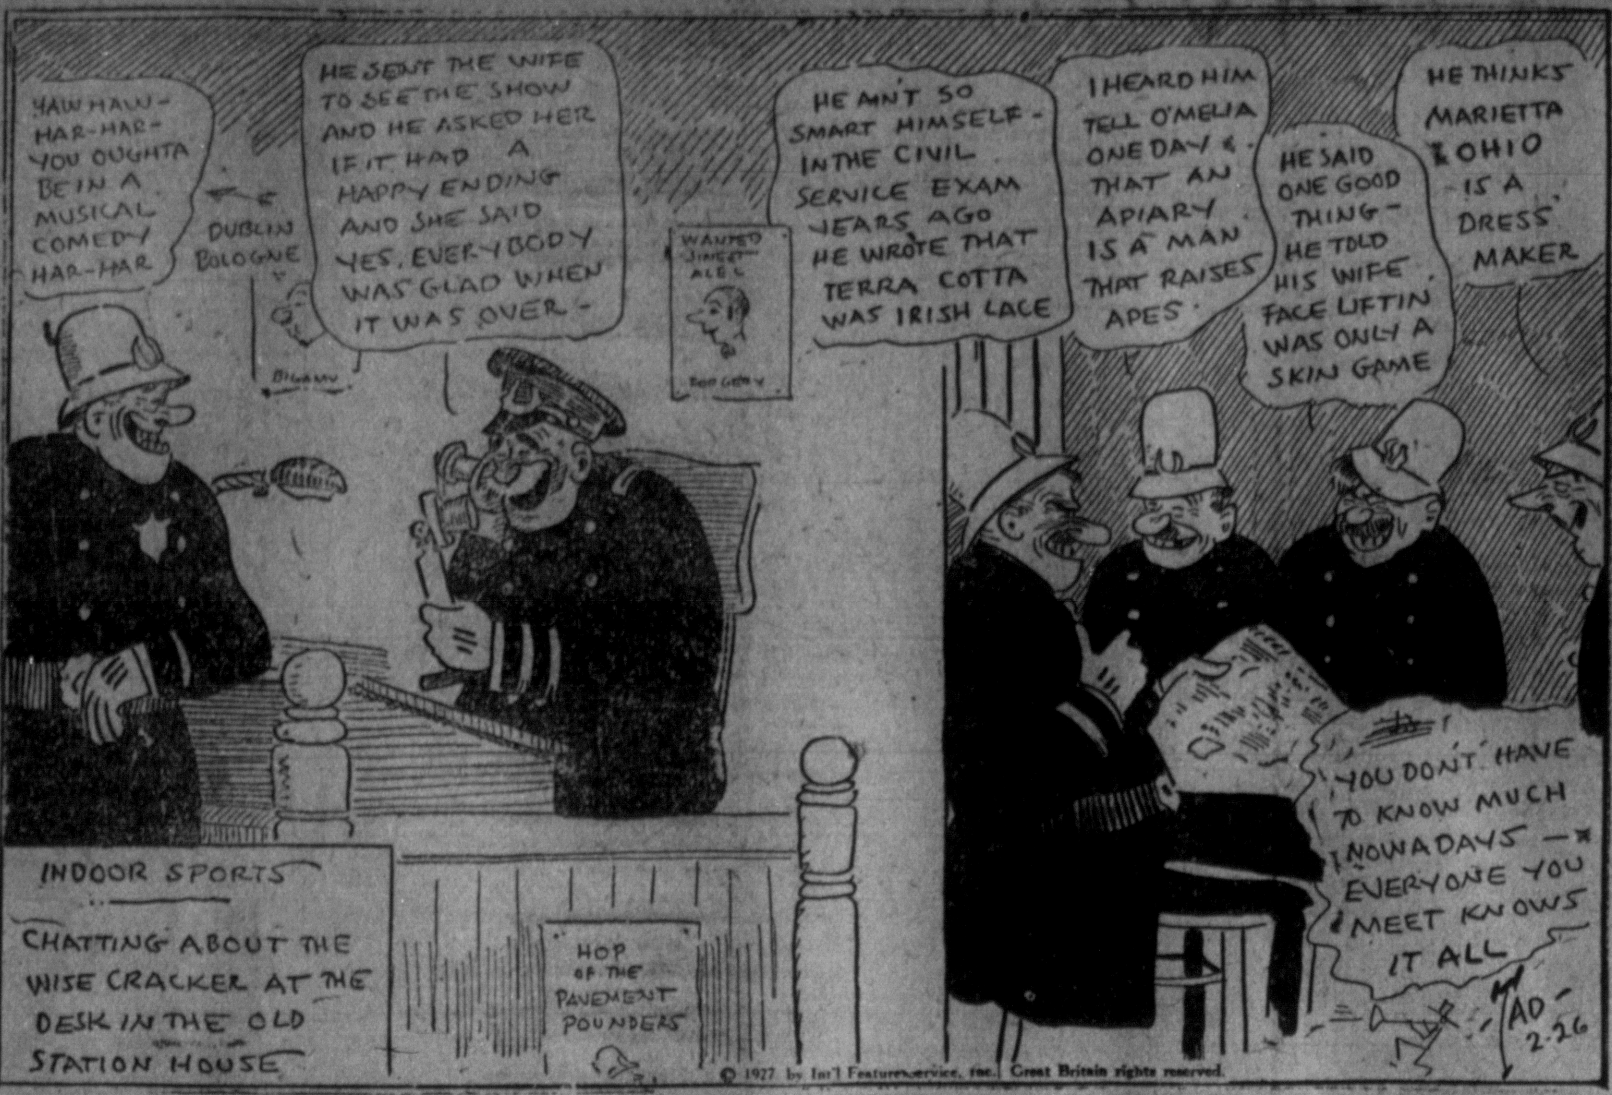

Ordinary drinkable port in Britain ranges from $1 to $4 per quart bottle.

Paid $6,000 For Fine Cremona Fiddle It Turns Out To Be Only Worth $100

By International News Service SAN FRANCISCO.—For twenty-one years Louis Roeder, former wealthy Los Angeles druggist, thought he owned a rare Cremona violin made in 1739. Roeder, a lover of rare fiddles, purchased the supposed Cremona in 1905 for $6,000.

A short time ago, however, Roeder attempted to sell the violin and offered it to collectors for appraisal. They scorned the instrument, telling him it was worth less than $100.

Now Roeder is suing a local music house in an attempt to recover the $6,000. The plaintiff, claims, in his suit which is on file in superior court here, that he purchased the violin from an authorized agent of the local music dealers.

The music firm, however, denies that Roeder bought the violin from their accredited representative.

Collectors explained that perhaps the violin in litigation is a Cremona, but one that was manufactured in the later and declining years of craftsmanship. Violins made in Cremona by Giuseppe Antonio, known as "Guarneri del Gesù," compare favorably with the best instruments of the great Stradivarius.

Your Income Tax

No. 36

Under the "information at source" provision of the revenue act of 1926, all persons, "in whatever capacity acting," are required to report to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue payments to others during the taxable year of $1,500 if the recipient of such payments is single. If the recipient is married, report need not be made if the payments aggregate less than $3,500. If the marital status of the payee is unknown to the payer, or if the marital status of the payee changed during the year, the payee is considered a single person for the purpose of filing an information return. A separate return of information for each employee is required of employers. The requirement is not limited to periodical payments, but a single payment must be reported.

Information returns are carefully checked with the individual return of the taxpayer to whom such payments are made. During the year 1926, many delinquent returns were secured as a result of the examination of information returns.

The act requires report of payments of "interest, rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments, or other fixed or determinable gains, profits, and income."

However, payments of the following character, although over $1,500, need not be reported in returns of information: Payment of interest on obligations of the United States; payments of any type made to corporations; payments made for merchandise; telegrams, telephone, freight, storage, professional services, and similar charges; payments of rent made to real-estate agents (but the agent must report payments to a landlord if the amount paid during the year was $1,500 or more to a single person, a partnership, or a fiduciary, or $3,500 or more to a married person); payments made by branch offices of business houses located in foreign countries to alien employees serving in foreign countries; and payments made by

HOME MADE FILMS BEING DEMANDED

Britain Attempts To Block American Made Films

By International News Service LONDON.—No agreement has yet been reached between the Board of Trade and the film business regarding the compulsory quota of British films which the forthcoming government bill will insist on being included in every program shown in Britain.

There is no difference in principle, but purely on amount. The trade originally asked for a 12-1-2 per cent of British films in the first year, rising to 37-1-2 per cent in the third year, although some wished to go as high as 50 per cent. On the other hand the Federation of British Industries are inclined to put the starting figure at "something over 5 per cent."

All parties, however, are agreed that the only effective legislative action against "all American" program is the imposition of a quota system and measures to counter the American block and blind-bookings system. The trade also, while stating the quota would bring fresh capital into the industry, want the impost be applied to film exhibitors as well as film renters.

The United States to sailors and soldiers and to its civilian employees.

Information returns are required on or before March 15, 1927, on Form 1099, and must be accompanied by a letter of transmittal on Form 1006, which shows the number of returns filed. Copies of the form may be obtained from the offices of collectors of internal revenue and branch offices. Collectors, however, are not authorized to receive these returns, which should be addressed to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C., Sorting Section.
